

International Affairs

“Our students love being International Affairs majors. Not only do we study and talk about major issues that are front page news, but the interdisciplinary nature of the major lets students explore the same issue from many different perspectives and viewpoints.”

Dr. Jack Kramer, chair

New students considering a major in international affairs should select PSCI 101A and ECON 201B in the first semester and an appropriate foreign language course. They should then select PSCI 102A, ECON 202B, and the next course in the language sequence in the next semester. Students majoring in international affairs should also be aware that there is an additional foreign language requirement beyond the General Education requirements. Students must either A) complete two languages through the intermediate level, or B) earn at least six credits in one language at the advance level (beyond 202).
