X CHECK HERE if the proposed course is to be equated with the earlier topics or experimental offerings. This means that students who took the earlier “topics” course will only be able to take the new course if they made a C- grade or lower in the earlier course.

NOTE: If the proposed course has not been previously offered as a topics or experimental course, explain in the attached rationale statement why the course should be adopted even though it has not been tried out.

REQUIRED ATTACHMENTS:
1. Rationale Statement (Why is this course needed? What purposes will it serve?)
2. Impact Statement (Provide details about the Library, space, budget, and technology impacts created by adding this new course. Include supporting statements from the Library, IT Department, etc. as needed.)
3. Sample Syllabus

Course Rationale

The course, American Immigrant Experience, gives students an opportunity to read and research on a subject that is central to U.S. history. We will grapple with various themes related to immigration history, such as overseas developments and events that drive people to leave their homelands, American immigration and naturalization policies, popular and scientific nativism, and cultural synchronization.

As part of this course, students will read many secondary sources relevant to the field, which we discuss in a seminar fashion. Additionally, students will work on developing independent research projects related to the theme of the course. The course, though an elective, fulfills the 400-elective requirement for History majors and prepares them for completion of their senior thesis (HIST 485).
Impact Statement

HIST 449 will not greatly impact UMW to teach. This course will use pre-existing books, articles, and databases already available in the library. The only spaces that we will be using are classrooms, like other classes. There are no additional budgetary needs. We will be working with DTLT on various digital/new media projects, as I do in my other classes.

Course Goals:
This seminar allows students to explore the varied history of immigrants from the colonial period to the present and develop many of the skills that are central to historical inquiry. These skills include the following:

- Understanding of the discipline’s methods and processes
- Using materials from other disciplines that can be relevant to history
- Analyzing primary and secondary sources
- Writing with clarity about the past
- Conducting research in multiple sites
- Recognizing the historical nature of global processes
- Conducting a self-directed study
- Communicating informally in a group setting
- Making formal, oral presentations

This course is speaking intensive, which means it will address additional learning outcomes. They are the following:

- Understand and be able to explain the conventions and expectations of oral communication as practiced within the discipline of the course taken.
- Apply theories and strategies for crafting messages (verbal, nonverbal, and visual) for particular audiences and purposes.
- Craft oral messages after a conscious process in which various options are reviewed and will be able to explain and support their choices.
- Plan, research, organize, support, and deliver ideas and arguments in a public speaking setting.

Assignments:

- Class Participation—Because this course is a seminar, students are expected to contribute to class discussions daily to receive a passing grade (which is a “D”). Grades will be based on whether a student participated and the substance of his/her comments.
- Classroom Discussion Facilitation—Each student along with a partner or partners will lead class discussion of two books during the semester. Students can lecture, do role-playing, have students analyze primary documents, or stage a debate about the reading assignments. At least one day must be reserved for a general discussion of the text.
- American Immigration Research Project—Students will be required to write a 10-page research paper on any subject related to American immigration history. There will be a series of smaller assignments—project description, literature review, and presentation—that will lead to the completion of the final project. Students must have their project proposal approved by the instructor before proceeding with their research. Students have the option to re-write any aspect of this assignment, but you must meet with the instructor in order to discuss the changes that need to be made. The original paper also must be resubmitted. All re-writes are due two weeks after the writing assignment is returned (no exceptions). NOTE: all assignments will be marked down a partial letter grade for each day they are late, including weekends. No electronic copies will be accepted.

Project Breakdown:
- Project Description (1-to-2-pages)—A project description is a short document that addresses the following: 1) the subject that you plan to research and a working argument, 2) the types of primary and secondary sources that you plan to use, and 3) the significance of your proposed project. The instructor must approve the topic before beginning one’s research. The project description is due in class on Thursday, January 31.
- Literature Review (3-to-4 pages)—A literature review briefly discusses an issue (person, event, idea, etc.) and the ways in which several scholars have addressed it. This assignment must engage 3 books (NOTE: 3-to-4 articles=1 book) related to your project, and the books must be used in your research paper. The literature review is due in class on Thursday, March 14. For more information, see “Historiography” under “History Department Resources” on UMW’s history department’s website.
- Presentation—Students will give a 5-minute formal presentation to the class on your research during the last week of classes. It is highly recommended that students include a multimedia component or handouts. For more information, see “Presentations” under “History Department Resources” on UMW’s history department’s website.
- Research Paper (10 pages)—Students will hand in a 10-page research paper during the class’s scheduled exam period on Thursday, May 2 by 2:30PM. For questions on how to format your final paper, see “History Department Resources” on the history department’s website.

Speaking Center—Because this is a speaking intensive course, students are required to visit the Speaking Center before the end of the semester for any of our speaking-related assignments—research presentation, classroom facilitation, proposal presentations, or informal class discussion. Be sure to schedule appointments early!!! The Speaking Center schedule fills up fast, especially at the end of the semester. NOTE: Failure to attend to the Speaking Center reduces your participation grade by a full letter grade.

Grading:
The instructor will give an unsatisfactory mid-semester report for anyone with a grade of D or below on work completed at that time. Students must complete ALL assignments in order to pass this course. Below is the grade breakdown:

- Class Participation—40%
- Classroom Discussion Leadership—20%
- American Immigration Research Project—40%
  - Project Description—10%
  - Literature Review—30%
  - Presentation—10%
  - Research Paper—50%

Grading Rationale:
Academic performance is rated according to the following system:
A  4.00 quality points—Excellent
A-  3.70 quality points
B+  3.30 quality points
B   3.00 quality points—Commendable
B-  2.70 quality points
C+  2.30 quality points
C   2.00 quality points—Acceptable
C-  1.70 quality points
D+  1.30 quality points
D   1.00 quality points—Marginal
F   0.00 quality points—Failure

Honor Code:
The instructor believes that the Honor Code is an essential, positive component of the Mary Washington experience. You should know that if you cheat or plagiarize in this class, you will be taken to the Honor Council. So, do not do it. On the other hand, I also believe that having friends or family read and comment on your writing can be extremely helpful and falls within the bounds of the Honor Code (assuming the writing itself remains yours). If you have questions about these issues, then you should talk to me as soon as possible.

Accommodations:
If a student receives services through the Office of Disability Services and requires accommodations for this class, please make an appointment with the instructor as soon as possible to discuss his/her approved accommodation needs. Bring the accommodation letter with you to the appointment. The instructor will hold any information the student shares in the strictest confidence unless the student gives the instructor permission to do otherwise. If a student needs accommodations (note taking assistance or extended time for tests), please consult with the Office of Disability Services (x1266) about the appropriate documentation of a disability.
