Prerequisite: SOCG 105. Sociologist study food in order to puzzle through the complicated question of fairness, equity, justice, and all human beings; inherent right to nourishment and sustenance. What would a “just” food system look like? What social groups are advancing this cause in contemporary society? How successful have their efforts been? What can/will we do to contribute to this process? How will we adequately, healthily, and sustainable feed others and ourselves? | Prerequisite: SOCG 105 or SOCG 155 or permission of instructor. JUSTIFICATION (including impact on majors, minors, concentrations, and general education courses within the University curriculum; attach additional pages if required)

All upper level courses in sociology major that do not have special methodologies require EITHER SOCG 105 OR SOCG 155 as a prerequisite. An inadvertent elision of SOCG 155 was not seen by us when this course was initially as an offering. Upshot will be that non-majors who took 155 will have greater access to the course--our intention all along.

TRANSITION PLAN (describe how will students who are in Catalogs where the course is required for a major be accommodated; attach additional pages if required)

There will be no effect on majors.
