True or False?

1. You can withdraw from a class up until the Friday of the ninth week of the semester. This fall, that date is October 23.

2. If you withdraw from a class, you can stop attending the class, and you are no longer responsible for the material covered.

3. If you stop attending a class, the registrar will eventually withdraw you from the course automatically.

4. When you withdraw from a course, the course remains on your academic transcript with a grade of “W” after it.

5. When you withdraw from a course, you only have to pay 50% of the cost of the course.

6. You can change the grading for a course to “Pass/Fail” up until 5 p.m. the last day of classes.

7. If you take a course “Pass/Fail” and Pass, then you can use the course to satisfy an elective requirement, but you cannot use the course to satisfy a major requirement, a minor requirement, or a general education requirement.

8. If you take a course Pass/Fail, you don’t have to pay as much for the course and can request a partial refund.

9. If you take a course Pass/Fail and earn a “Pass,” it counts the same toward your GPA as if you earned an “A” in a course with standard grading.

10. You can only take up to one course each semester as “Pass/Fail.”
Solutions

1. You can withdraw from a class up until the Friday of the ninth week of the semester. This fall, that date is October 23.
   True. This is the deadline for withdrawing from an individual course. You can Withdraw from the University (every course) up until the last day of classes. You can find all of these dates on the Academic Calendar.

2. If you withdraw from a class, you can stop attending the class, and you are no longer responsible for the material covered.
   True. In some sense, withdrawing is like "dropping" a course. The big difference is that withdrawals stay on your transcript.

3. If you stop attending a class, the registrar will eventually withdraw you from the course automatically.
   False. The only way to withdraw for an individual course is with a paper form submitted to the Office of the Registrar by the 9th-week deadline.

4. When you withdraw from a course, the course remains on your academic transcript with a grade of "W" after it.
   True. That is exactly what happens.
